MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

Attached is a listing of various types of aircraft supplied to 17 non-Bloc countries by the Bloc and by the US.

The countries shown are those which have received Bloc aircraft. Those countries which have relied exclusively on the West as supplier of aircraft are not listed.

The pattern of this listing shows:

a. In supplying aircraft, the Bloc has concentrated most of its efforts on Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Afghanistan, Indonesia, and Cuba. (A current target, in arms negotiations, is, as you know, India).

b. The Bloc has supplied no military combat aircraft to African countries south of the Sahara.

Totals, on a geographic basis, are as follows:

Middle East and African states:	Bloc	782
	US	408
Far Eastern states :	Bloc	620
	US	317
The West (Cuba) :	Bloc	132 (plus various small liaison aircraft)
	US	69
Grand Total	Bloc	1,534
	US	794

1. Intelligence

a. An adequate intelligence effort in support of U. S. policy and action decisions is vital to the achievement of U. S. overseas internal defense objectives.

b. Such an intelligence effort must:

(1) Identify those free world countries where the threat of subversion or insurgency is potential, latent or incipient.

(2) Appraise the nature and scope of the threat and the contributing and significant factors related thereto.

(3) Provide intelligence estimates and appraisals upon which U. S. courses of action can be planned.

(4) Provide operational intelligence required to execute U. S. plans.

(5) Provide the intelligence needed to appraise the extent to which U. S. internal defense objectives are being achieved.

(6) Strengthen the intelligence capabilities of vulnerable countries.

c. All U. S. agencies having action responsibilities for overseas internal defense operations will contribute to the total U. S. intelligence effort in support thereof, in accordance with their particular capabilities and opportunities to do so, under the general coordination of the Director of Central Intelligence, and his desig-
